

Australian Brushturkey Survey

Town Crier

Did you know ?

Brushturkeys belong to a family of birds known as Megapodes. The word Megapode means big foot or feet (Mega - big; pode - foot). Megapodes are found in other places including New Guinea and some Pacific Islands. Brushturkeys are found in Eastern Australia from Cape York to about Sydney.

Things to do

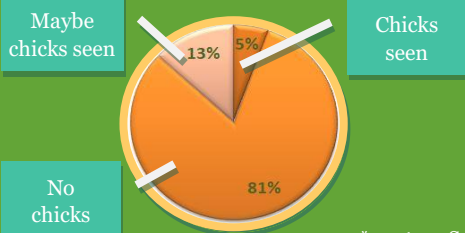

1. Search for Megapode pictures on the internet and compare our Australian Brushturkeys with their close relatives. What looks different and what looks the same?
2. Keep looking for Brushturkeys and reporting any birds you see to our Australian Brushturkey Survey.

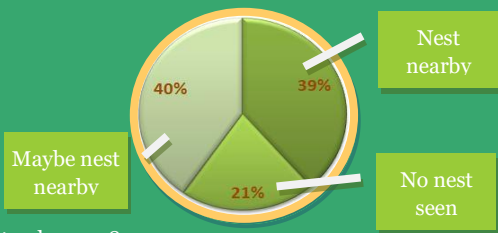

The Survey

- 389 entries made in September
- 1,327 Brushturkeys seen
- Reports from Springbrook to Bundaberg
- Will run until the end of 2018

The Chicks

The Nest Mounds

*as at 30 September 2018